"Your safety is our business"

When it comes to running a business health and safety may not be at the top of your list of 'things to do'.

Day to day pressures can mean that thinking about the health and safety of you and your staff may be put off until tomorrow. After all it's only common sense and you haven't had any accidents yet have you?

If that sounds familiar and if you are self-employed or own or manage a business there is good chance that you may be unwittingly breaking the law! And we all know that ignorance of the law is no excuse.

You need FAS Consultancy and Training to come and give you a FREE evaluation of your Fire and Health and Safety potential risks. All it is going to cost you is a couple of hours and a cup of tea and you will then know where you stand legally. Can you afford not to?

Fire and Safety Consultancy Training

As an employer you have a legal responsibility to protect the health and safety of your staff and other people - such as customers and members of the public - who may be affected by your work.

In general, employers (and this can include self-employed) must:

- Make the workplace safe and eliminate or control risks to health
- Ensure that plant machinery are safe and that safe systems of work are set and followed
- Ensure that articles and substances are moved, stored and used safely
- Provide adequate welfare facilities
- Give workers the information, instruction, training and supervision necessary for their health and safety
- Consult with workers on health and safety matters.

Good practice in health and safety means that you can:

- Protect you and your employees from suffering caused by accidents and ill health
- Reduce absences and sick leave
- Retain staff
- Maintain your organization's reputation
- Boost productivity and profits
- Reduce your insurance premiums and legal costs

Compliance with health and safety legislation and gaining the benefits from managing your business safely does not have to be complicated, neither does it have to be time consuming or difficult and FAS International Consultancy and Training are there to give you the best advice, and implement that advice if required with a straight forward, common sense approach.
